CAMP DAVID

Camp David is the President's Mountain Retreat. It is located in the Catoctin Mountain Park, approximately 65 miles north of Washington, D.C. The maps on the following pages show the location and layout of the camp.

Sycamore, Hawthorne, Walnut, and Laurel cabins, which are located in the White House Staff area, provide sleeping accommodations for a maximum of thirteen guests. Central dining and lounge facilities are available in Laurel cabin.

Recreation facilities within Camp David include swimming, archery, badminton, horseshoes, tennis, hiking, and playground equipment. Movies are shown daily in the camp recreation building, Hickory. They may be shown in Laurel upon request. Trout fishing can be done in the nearby streams of the Catoctin Mountain Park.

The camp is staffed by a detachment from the U.S. Naval Administrative Unit, Potomac River Naval Command. This detachment stands ready to provide as many services as possible. Charges for meals and refreshments are billed within ten days by the Mess Treasurer.
