SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The papers of Arthur F. Burns span the years 1928 through 1969. Although the bulk of the materials tend to be concentrated in the 1950's and 1960's, a significant exception is the file of drafts to several manuscripts which Burns worked on in the 1930's and 1940's. This collection reflects Burns' varied career as economist, researcher, educator, administrator, and government official.

Arthur Burn's activities as an economist and a researcher of business cycles and other economic matters are documented throughout much of the 1930's to the 1960's. Documentation on this aspect of his career includes manuscript drafts and working papers of various books, bulletins, and articles, and correspondence with numerous colleagues regarding research projects and economic theories. Since Burns served as an administrator at the National Bureau of Economic Research, there is also considerable material in this collection relating to the administration and research activities of the NBER.

Burns' role as an educator is less well-documented, but the collection does contain correspondence with numerous students and professional colleagues, lectures, lecture notes and related materials reading lists, outlines, and exams from university economics courses.

Considerable documentation on Burns' role as a government official, including correspondence with the President, various government officials, and professional colleagues, can be found in both the Council of Economic Advisers Series and in the General Correspondence Series. The Speech, Talks, and Lecture Series includes materials on a number of talks which Arthur F. Burns, as chairman of the CEA, gave at various Cabinet meetings from 1954 to 1956.

The documentation in the first two series of this collection is concentrated entirely in the 1950's and 1960's, and it is reflective mainly of the private life of Arthur Burns. Very few public policy issues are discussed in the correspondence in these files.

The General Correspondence Series contains considerable material from the years 1952 to 1969 and some from 1934 to 1938, but very little from the 1940's. This series consists of correspondence with many prominent individuals and organizations, including Sherman Adams, the American Bankers Association, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Barry Goldwater, George M. Humphrey, IBM, James P. Mitchell, Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., Richard M. Nixon, Nelson Rockefeller, and Rutledge Vining. Besides correspondence, this series contains numerous articles or papers by an assortment of economists and writers. Some of the topics discussed in the correspondence and in the related materials include unemployment, the role of the Council of Economic Advisers, politics, elections, the role and work of the National Bureau of Economic Research, monetary policy, business cycles, Federal Reserve policies, inflation, housing, production indexes, balance of payments, and credit policies.

The series on Burns' writings contains the drafts and working papers of two unpublished manuscripts which he apparently wrote in the 1930's--one on building construction and one on railroad construction. Burns studied the building cycles for these two industries and compared them with business cycles in general.

Drafts for the book, Measuring Business Cycles, comprise a large part of this series. The early drafts were written by Wesley C. Mitchell, whereas later drafts were authored primarily by Burns with input from Mitchell, Milton Friedman, Frederick C. Mills, Simon Kuznets, and NBER staff members. The various drafts, which date from 1933 to the mid-1940's, show a definite progression in the development of the book and in the business cycle theories and study techniques of Burns and his associates. When this book was published in 1946, it was heralded as a major contribution to economic research, and it is still viewed as a classic treatment of the subject of business cycles. Besides the drafts, this series contains the working papers, background materials, and correspondence relating to Measuring Business Cycles.

Also located in the Writings Series are a number of articles and bulletins written by Burns. There are a considerable number from the 1950's and 1960's, but very few from the 1930's and 1940's. Some of the topics covered in these writings include business cycles, the role of the economist in government, the CEA under Walter Heller, the role of the NBER, and the NBER's measures of cyclical behavior.

The series containing speeches, talks, and lectures is also concentrated in the 1950's and 1960's with very few dating from the 1930's and 1940's. Topics covered in some of these discourses include the activities of the CEA, Wesley C. Mitchell and the NBER, the Keynesian System, the current economic situation, the business-cycle policy of government, the problem of inflation, employment, economic growth, and the defense sector.

The Foreign Travel Series contains information on trips which Burns made to various countries, including Spain, Japan, Israel, India, and England, between 1958 and 1968. Foreign governments, the U.S. Department of State, private foundations, and foreign universities sponsored these trips which usually involved lectures or seminars and the application of his expertise as an economist to economic problems in a wide variety of settings.

Arthur F. Burns served as Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers during the years 1953 to 1956. Documentation of this portion of his career is quite good. The CEA Series includes correspondence with members of Congress and with staff members of different federal agencies and departments, including Gabriel Hauge, Joseph Dodge, Maurice Stans, George Humphrey, and William McChesney Martin, Jr. This series contains correspondence, memoranda, reports, and background information furnished by members and assistants of the CEA, including Neil Jacoby, Raymond Saulnier, Joseph Pechman, and Irving Strauss. Another important segment of this series is the documentation concerning the various economic sectors in the U.S. economy and the reports, drafts of reports, memoranda, correspondence, and related working files for the yearly Economic Reports of the President, 1954-1957.

The two series on the National Bureau of Economic Research contain materials on the activities and operations of the organization, including administration, finances, personnel, publishing efforts, and research projects. The bulk of this material tends to be concentrated in the period from 1956 to 1969, although there are some scattered materials from the 1930's, 1940's, and early 1950's as well. There is documentation concerning the NBER's research efforts on such topics as business cycles, economic growth, financial institutions, international trade, and national income.

Series X documents Arthur Burns' work with and involvement in a number of private and public organizations, agencies, and institutions. These include the Academy of Political Science, Columbia University, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Advisory Council on Social Security Financing, and the President's Advisory Committee on Labor-Management Policy.

The General Subject Series reflects the interest of Burns in a variety of topics relating to economics and statistics. Some of the topics on which he collected materials include the acceleration principle, balance of payments, business cycles, federal budget, foreign trade, federal debt, inflation, interest rates, track mileage of railroads, Keynes' theory of business cycles, recessions, and the value of money.

The series, Printed and Manuscript Materials by Other Writers, contains articles, pamphlets, and manuscripts by many well-known economists, researchers, public figures, and writers. These include Moses J. Abramovitz, Ezra Taft Benson, Milton Friedman, Walter W. Heller, Henry Kissinger, Simon Kuznets, Frederick Mills, Wesley C. Mitchell, Raymond Saulnier, and Julius Shiskin. Some of the subjects discussed in these materials are monetary policy, taxes, agriculture, business cycles, production trends, Federal Reserve policy, employment, balance of payments, profits and losses, and credit.

In this finding aid Burns' folder titles have been used as much as possible. If something has been added to a folder title or if a new folder title has been created, we have placed this citation in brackets [].
