

EISENHOWER, DWIGHT D.: POST-PRESIDENTIAL PAPERS, 1961-69

1966 SIGNATURE FILE

Series Description

The Signature File contains materials similar to those found in the 1966 Principal File. It consists of files which the Gettysburg office staff no longer needed for future reference. These files were shipped to the Eisenhower Library and organized following the same arrangement pattern as the Principal File. Since the files contain carbon copies of many letters signed by Dwight D. Eisenhower, the series was referred to as the "Signature File."

The series is divided into two subseries. The first is a subject subseries. It contains such categories as gifts, invitations, medals and awards, memberships, messages, politics, publications, public relations, speeches, and statements. Gifts received and invitations declined are the two largest categories. Within each subject or category the correspondence is organized alphabetically.

Eisenhower's staff wrote hundreds of letters acknowledging gifts of books, photographs, golf tees, tie tacs, periodicals, paintings or sketches, handkerchiefs, articles, and clippings. Some interesting historic items in this series include the original diary of a World War I soldier, several World War II newspaper issues, maps drawn by a German officer concerning the invasion of Poland, and a collection of political cartoons from foreign newspapers.

This series documents the large numbers of invitations to various events and meetings which Eisenhower received. Most of these were politely declined.

Another item found in this subseries is the transcript of an interview of Dwight Eisenhower by Alistair Cooke for the television production, "Eisenhower on the Military Churchill." It contains comments on military strategy as well as anecdotes regarding Winston Churchill.

The second subseries is a seven-box alphabetical file. It is organized alphabetically by the names of individuals and organizations who were writing to Eisenhower. The subseries has a few comments by Eisenhower on substantive issues. In a five-page letter to Milton Eisenhower he comments on his view of the Russians during World War II and political considerations which affected military decisions and strategy. He comments on the qualities a president should have in other correspondence. However, most of the correspondence deals with routine matters which were handled by his office staff. Get-well wishes, birthday greetings, and golden wedding anniversary correspondence are all filed in this series.

There are also a number of interesting historic items which individuals sent to Eisenhower. A 1941 issue of the Fort Lewis Sentinel, an 1863 issue of Harper's Weekly, a June 6, 1944 newspaper, a 1941 War Department order sending Colonel Eisenhower to San Antonio, Texas, a booklet advertising an Abilene carriage works, and an 1864 issue of Godey's Lady's Book are some of the unique items found in this subseries. The galley proofs for a book by Stephen

Ambrose, a paper on medical services during the Normandy invasion, and an unpublished novel are also located in this subseries.

The 1966 Signature File has some scattered correspondence with notable figures, such as Leonard Hall, Louis Marx, L. B. Maytag, E. Frederic Morrow, Nguyen-van-Thieu, and General Westmoreland. However, most of the correspondence relates to gifts, invitations, birthdays, the fiftieth wedding anniversary, and other routine matters.

The series documents the type and volume of routine correspondence handled by Eisenhower's small office staff. Although there are references to a few substantive issues, the great bulk of the series deals with run-of-the-mill administrative subjects. There are a few interesting historic items which were sent to Eisenhower. The large volume of letters, the home-made greeting cards from school children, and numerous small gifts from the public reveal the level of interest and affection many Americans continued to have for the ex-president.

There are no classified documents in this series. Nine pages have been closed due to agency restrictions. Forty-six items, or groups of items, were transferred to the Museum, and fifty-seven books, newspapers, and periodicals were transferred to the Book Collection. Thirty-one photographs, one color transparency, eighteen slides, one slide negative, and two 45 rpm records were sent to the Audiovisual Collection.
